

Ice breaker 2: True or False

Ask participants to introduce themselves, providing their name and role (and organisation, if the group is mixed).

Have participants write down three things about themselves – two true and one false – and then ask each participant to read out their list.

The other participants must try to guess, and note down, which statement from each of the other participants is false.

Once everyone has had a turn at reading out their list, ask the participants in random order to guess which statements about the other participants are false.
